

IN A MINING SHAFT.

Mr. Haas Has a Dangerous Experience at Black Rock.

With shoulders and his hips mashed, bruised in body and mind, from the effect of falling into and lying at the bottom of a 120-foot mining shaft at the Black Rock mine for thirty-six hours, Fred Haas, a well known prospector, is now lying at the hotel in Pima, under the care of Dr. Wightman. As near as can be learned, the facts of the accident are as follows:

Haas, with his partner, Emil Fillman, started from home on the morning of the 22nd of January to do some assessment work above Black Rock. Fillman went direct to the work. Haas going by way of the blacksmith shop of the Spenszuma company works to get some tools. As he came near the shop he stopped at a shaft belonging to the Spenszuma company, raised one of the trap doors and while looking down the shaft the door dropped, hitting him on the head and knocking him into the shaft, a distance of 120 feet. There was a platform about five feet from the bottom of the shaft, covered with two feet of dirt; this platform gave way, which is all that saved the man's life. This happened at 11 o'clock on the morning of the 22nd. Search was not begun until the next morning. He was discovered by the searching party not long since coming through the cracks of the trap door of the mining shaft at 6 o'clock p. m. Haas had built a fire with lumber in the shaft, written his will on a piece of board and made all preparations to die alone and uncared for when relief came.

The ground near the shaft was examined closely by Hon. Geo. A. Olney of Safford, and others, who was in the vicinity gathering cattle, and nothing could be found to indicate foul play.

Mr. Haas has since stated in Pima that some one, a stranger to him, struck him a severe blow on the head, which deprived him of his senses, and then dragged him some distance to the old shaft and threw him in. Fort Thomas correspondence Salomonville Bulletin.

Copper Producers Advancing Prices.

A dispatch to the San Francisco Examiner, dated New York, January 28, says: "The copper trade seems to have about reached its conclusion. While it is not admitted that any definite agreement has been reached between the American Copper company on one side and the Calumet and Hecla and other independent concerns in this country on the other, with the Rio Tinto of Europe forming the third part of the contract, it seems that the surplus stock of metal has been disposed of and the manufacturers are now placing their orders so rapidly for future delivery that the producers are harmoniously advancing prices. A representative of the Rio Tinto company is said to be on his way to this country to close an agreement with the American Copper company under which the output of the Rio Tinto company is to be reduced by 20 per cent. until March 31, and by 10 per cent after that date."

It was reported late this afternoon that the United Metal Selling company, which is the agent of the Amalgamated company, has raised the price of lake copper to 12 cents per pound, which is an advance of 1 cent from the previous day and the price of electrolytic to 11 1/2 cents, which is about the same increase.

Now the consumers are fairly tumbling over themselves in their anxiety to accumulate supplies of the metal at the low point and the United Metal Selling company was compelled to mark up the price.

Richest Man in America.

The richest man in all the world today is an American miner. He has made every dollar he is worth working American mines. He is not yet much past the prime of life, and he was elected to the United States senate from Montana only a few months ago. His name is William A. Clark. He went to the Rocky mountains about thirty-five years ago, with no other capital than good health and a pretty good education, and today he is the richest man in all the world, has more wealth than any other individual in all the world has ever possessed—has so much wealth that the Rothschilds, the Vanderbilts and the Carnegies are poor men compared with him. He made his great wealth in Montana, but it is the United Verde mine in Arizona that constitutes the bulk of his fortune. It is claimed to represent a calculable gross value today exceeding five billions.—Mining Record.

The Deadwood Coach

The picturesque figure of Col. Wm. F. Cody, popularly known as "Buffalo Bill," has been seen frequently about the corridors of the downtown hotels during the present session of congress. The colonel has his long flowing hair gathered up in a tight knot on the top of his head, and carefully concealed beneath his wide-brimmed sombrero, which he wears constantly. He is none the less noticed because of his striking figure and the unusually graceful carriage of a man of such large proportions. He is interested in the general movement in the West for congressional action providing irrigation for the arid and semiarid states. Since coming here he has made up his mind to present to the National museum his famous "Deadwood coach." The coach was built more than forty years ago, and the officers of the museum have discovered that it is the only one of what were known as the Concord coaches now in existence in this country. The museum has every type of vehicle ever used in the United States except a Concord coach. Hence, they coveted the Cody coach. Added interest is given the vehicle because nearly all of the crowned heads of Europe have rested against its leather back as it careened from side to side in the wild dash which was a part of the spectacle which was presented abroad under the direction of Col. Cody. The present President and his predecessor have been seated in the coach as guests of its owner. It is to be given an honored place in the museum.—Globe-Democrat, Washington correspondent.

MARCONI'S THEORY DOUBTED

French Scientists Question Authenticity of Recent Tests.

French experimenters in wireless telegraphy complain that Marconi does not give full details of the recent tests, and that they therefore can not avoid suspecting that they were not so successful as reported.

A member of the academy of sciences, who is not willing to have his name published, declares that investigation made in Cornwall shows that the hours of sending and receiving do not correspond. He proposes to lay the facts before Marconi and ask for an explanation.

Louis Calletet, a member of the academy of sciences, who is also interested in wireless telegraphy, said today that he believed Marconi was deceived. "The three dots," said M. Calletet, "which make the letter S in the Morse code, can be produced by the least accidental shock to the wire. Therefore, unless I am shown Marconi's record receipt, scientific spirit forbids me to accept the result as conclusive. Marconi declares he received the message through the telephone; thus his experiments have no value from our standpoint."

All the wireless telegraph experimenters in Europe have been invited to take part in a trial to be made between Denmark and Sweden in March and April at the expense of the two governments.

Having a Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Between the hours of 11 o'clock a. m. and closing time at night on January 25, 1901, A. F. Clark, druggist, Glade Springs, Va., sold twelve bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says, "I never handled a medicine that sold better or gave better satisfaction to my customers." This Remedy has been in general use in Virginia for many years, and the people there are well acquainted with its excellent qualities. Many of them have testified to the remarkable cures which it has effected. When you need a good, reliable medicine for a cough or cold, or attack of the grip, use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you are certain to be more than pleased with the quick cure which it affords. For sale by H. C. Hitchcock.

Mrs. Sarah Mackey, of Taylorville, Ill., is slowly dying from the result of constantly sneezing. Friday she broke all previous records, sneezing 700 times in one hour by actual count. Previous to this time she sneezed 187 times in one hour, then after a rest of two minutes, sneezed 54 times. She has been sneezing constantly for a period of two weeks and has been gradually growing weaker. The case is a puzzle to physicians, as all efforts for relief have proved unavailing.

Clerk's Wise Suggestion.

"I have lately been much troubled with dyspepsia, belching and sour stomach," writes M. S. Mead, leading pharmacist of Attleboro, Mass. "I could eat hardly anything without suffering several hours. My clerk suggested I try Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which I did, with most happy results. I have had no more trouble, and when one can go to eating mince pie, cheese, candy and nuts after such a time, their digestion must be pretty good. I endorse Kodol Dyspepsia Cure heartily." You don't have to diet. "Eat all the good food you want but don't overload the stomach. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests your food." Globe Drug Store, Roberts & Peterson.

The Best on Hand.

"Jennie, what makes you such a bad girl?" "Well, mamma, God sent you just the best children he could find, and if they don't suit you, I can't help it."

Chronic Diarrhoea.

Mr. C. B. Wingfield, of Fair Play, Mo., who suffered from chronic dysentery for thirty-five years, says Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy did him more good than any other medicine he had ever used. For sale by H. C. Hitchcock.
